

Council Applauds Lady Raiders As Maryland 4A Champions

by Thomas X. White

The April 28 Greenbelt City Council meeting was another of those evenings with little or no business on the agenda. Luckily several presentations and the first public hearing on the proposed FY 2015 city budget filled the void. All seven members of council were in attendance.

In the first presentation the Eleanor Roosevelt Lady Raider basketball state champions were on hand to receive congratulations from the city council. The entire Maryland 4A State Championship team was there, including team captain Tolu Omokore, co-captain Kaila Charles, head coach Delton Fuller, assistant coaches Keith Pyles and Aubrey Butler and school principal Reginald McNeil. With no seniors on the 2014 roster, the Lady Raiders look forward to another successful season in 2015.

The second group welcomed by Mayor Emmett Jordan and council were representatives of the Lancaster Bible College, Capital Seminary and Graduate School, who recently relocated from Lanham to new facilities on Walker Drive in the Greenbelt Golden Triangle office park. The expanded college has taken over facilities recently vacated by the University of Phoenix and now offers doctorates in biblical studies and ministry.

Sheriff’s Report

Prince George’s County Sheriff Melvin C. High made the third presentation, providing a comprehensive report and update on the varied activities and responsibilities of the Sheriff’s office. He was accompanied by several members of staff. High used a slide presentation to describe and report on the various services performed by his agency. The thrust of his presentation was that, while the responsibilities of his agency have increased, the numbers of sworn officers and civilian staff within the department remains about the same.

High described the range of departmental responsibilities beginning with security at the county’s courthouse facilities, the servicing of warrants and being responsible for extraditing persons charged with criminal offenses and returning them to the county for trial. His department is also responsible for child support enforcement, domestic violence interventions, protective and peace orders issued by the courts, victim assistance and landlord/tenant relations.

The final presentation for the evening was by Jordan to Joe McNeal, assistant director of recreation, to recognize Greenbelt’s participation in the “National Kids to Parks Day” on May 17. Sponsored by the National

by Cathie Meetre

May 11 at 10 a.m. on the nose, GFM’s Hardy Perennial Market Master Nancy Solomon will ring the bell that peals out the start of a new season of the Greenbelt Farmers Market (GFM). Just like the tubers and the seeds, just like the mushrooms nestling under the logs, the GFM Board has been preparing during the long dark winter months for spring. Mother’s Day has become the traditional opening day for the market and, as tradition also dictates, there will be balloons for the small fry.

The market has 25+ vendors this year – old friends and new. Some attend every week, others rotate or visit occasionally. A complete list is available on the GFM website (www.greenbelt-farmersmarket.org) along with information on market products, how to volunteer, hours and dates, and how to sign up for the newsletter.

GFM is a producer and consumables market. All products must be grown or made by the vendor and must be consumable in some way (e.g. soap or lotion is consumed on the body, but pottery is rarely consumed with good results). Vendors must come from within 100 miles or from within Maryland. GFM visits its vendors to ensure that the farm has the resources to grow, make or raise the produce at its facility or farm. All vendors are required to obtain health permits, fair weights and measures certification of scales, and to conform to regulations that control how food is sold and stored.

New Signs

This year, Greenbelt Road at Southway and Kenilworth Ave. at Crescent Road sport cheerful new permanent signs courtesy of the Greenbelt Community Foundation, replacing the heavy portable signs in the medians on Kenilworth Ave. and Greenbelt Road. Smaller signs direct traffic within the City. These new signs keep the market in the minds of passers-by year round, and (as many volunteers will thankfully attest) help GFM lower the physical risk to volunteers of carrying and deploying/retrieving the portable signs on these busy intersections. In line with GFM’s commitment to recycling, the old wooden signs have found a new home with Mishkan Torah!

It’s a busy time for the GFM Board – organizing vendors and navigating county permits – but worth it. The parking lot between the New Deal Café and the Community Center flowers with tents and awnings, scintillates with strawberries, shivers deliciously with ice cream, and

Crime Rate Continues to Plummet, Public Safety Budget Is Stable

by Stan Zirkin

The largest budget that the Greenbelt City Council has to deal with each year is the Public Safety Budget, which totaled $110,067,300 for FY 2014. The FY 2015 proposed budget calls for $10,092,300 in total expenditures, just a slight increase. On May 5 the city council met with representatives of the police department and the Greenbelt Community Emergency Response Team (CERT) to consider the proposed Public Safety Budget for FY 2015, which begins July 1. Although the Fire and Rescue and Animal Control budgets were also part of the Public Safety budget, they were not discussed at the meeting. Fire Department officials had a conflict and could not attend the session. They will be rescheduled for a later worksession.

Crime Statistics

A major theme of the worksession was the continuing drastic decline in the city’s crime rate. Serious crimes – defined as murder, rape, robbery, assault, burglary, larceny and auto theft – decreased 16.4 percent between 2012 and 2013 (from 1134 to 948 reported incidents). By comparison, the Washington Metropolitan region of Montgomery and Prince George’s counties experienced a 6.5 percent decrease. Property crimes, which made up 89 percent of the total city crime in 2013, were down 18 percent between 2012 and 2013. Greenbelt West, the most heavily populated area of Greenbelt, had 50 percent of the reported crime, followed by Greenbelt East (31 percent) and historic Greenbelt (19 percent). For more detailed recent crime statistics, see the front page article in the March 20, 2014, News Review.

Councilmember Ed Putens commented that while this is certainly impressive, there are still a large number of instances in which vehicles are damaged and wondered what could be done about that. Police Chief James Craze noted that his department addresses this issue primarily through public information because citizens frequently make their vehicles vulnerable by leaving them unlocked or leaving valuables on the seats where they can easily be seen by potential thieves. He also stated that the police have to prioritize and that serious crimes take precedence.

According to Craze, he expects a significant increase in DUI arrests in FY 2015 due to a recent liberalization of Maryland’s marijuana law. That has been the experience of the states of Washington and Oregon where

Greenbelt Utopia Festival Highlights 10 Years of Film

To celebrate its 10th Anniversary, Greenbelt’s Utopia Film Festival on Saturday, May 17, will present 10 Years of Utopia – a day and evening of selections from its decade-long history as Prince George’s County’s first international film festival.

The program will run from noon till 11 p.m. at the historic P&G Old Greenbelt Theatre at Roosevelt Center and will include documentaries, shorts, animation, spoofs and scary films.

10 Years of Utopia is free to the public, sponsored by non-profit Greenbelt Access Television (GATE) and non-profit Greenbelt Association for the Visual Arts (GAVA), which directs the GATE/GAVA animation program.

Screenings start at noon with a powerful 48-minute documentary about life in contemporary suburbia Subdivided: Isolation and Community in America. From 1 to 2 p.m., GAVA will present a program of animations by students of George Kochell’s animation class as well as some vintage cartoons.

From 2 to 5 p.m., a dozen of Utopia’s best short films will screen. These include an interview with Gandhi’s grandson; the story of a pivotal Virginia civil rights protest; the profile of a doggie drill team; a young man’s investigation of wheelchair accessibility in Europe; the biography of a freedom-loving chimpanzee; a Russian computer scientist’s struggles to be inventive in the Stalinist Soviet Union; and one man’s creation and absolute rule of his own kingdom in the middle of Nevada.

A documentary program starts at 6 p.m., with Green Towns USA: A New Deal, about the creation of FDR’s utopian communities of Green Hills, Ohio; Greendale, Wisc.; and Greenbelt. At 7 p.m., DPRK: The Land of Whispers offers a rare glimpse of North Korea, as it follows a young filmmaker’s bizarre journey through that isolated nation, followed at 8 p.m. by A Girl Like Her, a poignant film about the stigma of unmarried pregnancy in the 50s and 60s.

At 9 p.m., an array of sci-fi/horror works will be presented. (All films and times are subject to change.)

Letters to the Editor

Appreciation

Over 75 members of the New Deal Café (NDC) cooperative signed (before, during and after the annual meeting) a thank-you letter to Terri Rutledge for her 18 years of commitment. Terri served as volunteer, board member and board president, twice as general manager, and for achievements that long-time members of NDC can remember and verify. Terri, as general manager, managed to make sure the NDC got a liquor license in a time when no one else in town realized this is what would “Save the New Deal”. Before that, also as general manager, Terri averted an IRS foreclosure due to unpaid taxes. Among many other things, Terri is also thanked for crucial peace-making efforts during the contract negotiations of a few years ago between the Cooperative and the restaurant’s manager, Karim.

No Misconception

It has been suggested that my Letter to the Editor published April 24, 2014, contained a serious misconception regarding the sources of funding Greenbelt Access Television, Inc. (GATE) receives from the City of Greenbelt. I confirmed with city staff that the sources of funding were correctly identified in my letter and that the city’s contribution to GATE of franchise fees collected for use of city right-of-way is discretionary. There was no reference to taxpayer funds in my letter, and any misconception that the funding comes from taxpayer funds should not have emanated from my letter.

Correction

Apologies to Eva Fallon of Club125, whose name was given incorrectly in the third paragraph of the April 27 article on the city council worksession with the Roosevelt Center merchants.

Gratitude

Speaking as an individual, I would like to express my personal feelings of deep gratitude to, and appreciation for, the two outgoing New Deal Café Board members, Lisa Voith and Dorian Winterfeld.

In addition to the many contributions they made to the Cafe in general, Lisa’s quiet wisdom and Dorian’s attention to detail were particularly important to the work of the Board of Directors. During the last two years, and especially in the last few months, Lisa and Dorian made critical contributions to the Cafe’s success. They also helped me personally as president of the Board. I will deeply miss having these two outstanding individuals serving on the board with me.

A Down Home Shakedown

Opening at Old Greenbelt Theatre on Friday, May 9 is Nebraska, a gritty, black and white road story rooted in the Midwest that took top honors at the Cannes film festival. An all-but-wastrel Woody Grant (Bruce Dern) prevails on his estranged son, David Grant (Will Forte) to drive him from Montana to Nebraska to claim a million-dollar sweepstake prize. Is it for real? All the while David tries to get at the earlier years of Woody and wife/mother Kate Grant (June Squibb). Director Alexander Payne (Sideways, The Descendants) and writer Bob Nelson were among the film’s six Oscar nominees.

Obituaries

Ann Landry Lombardi

Greenbelt resident Ann Landry Lombardi died April 30, 2014 at the age of 77.

She is survived by her husband James Lombardi and three children, Joseph James Lombardi, Ann Marie Lombardi and Joyce Roseann Lombardi; two grandchildren, Atlas Lombardi Pyke and Ramonda Lombardi Pyke; brother Charles Landry and the late Richard Landry.

Mrs. Lombardi loved politics, parties and family.

Born Ann Beaulieu Landry on July 14, 1936, to a sturdy French Canadian family in Millinockett, Maine, she moved to Washington, D.C., to obtain a nursing degree from the Catholic University of America. She quickly took to life inside the Beltway and stayed put, marrying an idealistic classmate named James Lombardi and proudly launching her career as a public health nurse for the Washington, D.C., and Prince George's County health departments.

That career led to a six-year position on the board of directors for Prince George's Hospital and Medical Center, where she demonstrated a meticulous leadership style that would become her hallmark. In the late 70s, Mrs. Lombardi door-knocked her way to an at-large seat on the Prince George's County Council, which she held from 1978 to 1982. Years later, the Prince George's Journal described her as "one of the most capable County Council members in that body's 20-years history."

In 1983, Mrs. Lombardi was appointed Commissioner of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, overseeing a $400 million budget and a staff of 2,000. Privately, she mocked herself as "the sludge queen," but was thrilled to feed her lifelong fascination with civil engineering and water works. She decorated her home, not with prints of flowers or seascapes, but with pictures of canals, locks and dams.

After successfully battling Hodgkin's disease in the late 80s, Mrs. Lombardi became an active member of the Lobby Corps of the League of Women Voters on Capitol Hill. She remained committed to good governance, voters' rights, women's and health issues for the rest of her life. Every Election Day her adult children got a phone call: "Did you vote yet?"

Ann was immersed in the lives of her three children and two grandchildren; she volunteered at their schools, she hosted their friends, she relished their details. Ann died of a stroke in her tidy brick house in Greenbelt on April 30, 2014, doing what she loved: preparing for a family patio party, just because.

A funeral service will be held at a later date. Memorial contributions may be made to the League of Women Voters at www.lwv.org.

H. Natalie Ogden Reynolds

Longtime Southway resident Natalie Ogden Reynolds died April 29, 2014, at the age of 88. She is survived by her four children, who all grew up in Greenbelt: Sharon Walton of Lanham, Diana Baglino of Belize, Thomas Ogden of Crofton and Janice Kennedy of Texas; nine grandchildren, eight great-grandchildren and many nieces and nephews. She was predeceased by four sisters and one grandson.

Her funeral service was held at Borgwardt Funeral Home in Beltsville on May 3, with interment in George Washington Cemetery. Memorial contributions may be made to Special Olympics at www.specialolympics.org or Hospice of the Chesapeake at www.hospicechesapeake.org.

Condolences to the family and friends of Natalie Ogden Reynolds, 88, who died April 29. She was a 58-year Greenbelt resident.

We were sorry to hear of the death of Mary V. Long of Annapolis, 77, on April 29. She was the wife of pioneer Greenbelter and "Grizzlies" member Joseph Q. Long, who survives her. The couple was married 56 years and have two daughters and three grandchildren.

Deepest sympathy to the family of former Greenbelt police chief William T. Lane, who died on May 6.

Congratulations to:
- Our oldest News Review carrier, John Henry Jones, who celebrated his 86th birthday on May 6. Known for singing Happy Birthday over the phone to many others, now it's John Henry's turn!

- This is college graduation season and we know that many of our talented Greenbelters are receiving degrees. If you'd like to announce the graduation of someone in your family, leave a message on my phone and I'll make a list to be published. I'll need the name of the graduate, degree and discipline and name of the college.

Coyote Sighting On Research Road

On Saturday evening, April 19, Uri Yokel and his wife, Kathy Rodriguez, spotted a coyote as they pulled into their long wooded driveway on Research Road. Their unexpected appearance startled the coyote, and it bounded away into the night. Yokel described the animal as medium dog-sized with a long, bushy black-tipped tail and said it was “fast and graceful.”

Yokel noted that “rabbits have been plentiful along the driveway over the past week, which may have attracted the coyote.” He noted that neighbors “might want to keep your cats in at night.”

possession of marijuana was legalized, according to Craze.

Some interesting explanations were offered at the session for the drop in crime. Aside from sharper police strategies, stiffer prison sentences and newer technologies, other factors also came into play. Studies show that out-of-work people staying home due to the economy have deterred criminals by their presence or by notifying police of suspicious behavior. The deterrence factor has been bolstered by telecommuters and retirees staying at home. Some experts also point to the proliferation of video games and other electronic devices as a contributing factor, since fewer young people on the street mean fewer potential criminals and fewer targets. There is also some suggestion in the literature that violent video games may actually mitigate real-life aggressive behavior. For a fuller discussion of these studies and other factors that have contributed to the decline in crime, see the article on page 8 of the March 20, 2014 edition of the News Review (“A Commentary by Chief James Craze”).

Personnel Budget

The same number of full-time employees (FTEs) authorized in the FY 2014 budget are proposed for the FY 2015 budget, a total of 70 including 54 police officers and 16 civilians employees. The FY 2014 budget for personnel expenses was $8,319,700; the proposed FY 2015 budget is $8,299,400. During the discussion with the council, Craze stated that one of the department’s biggest challenges is to replace retiring officers with well-qualified personnel. In the past calendar year, four officers retired, and 19 more are eligible to retire in the coming fiscal year. The department is currently engaged in an active recruitment campaign.

The trend towards increasing the number of civilians is a long-term management objective, Craze reported. In FY 2014 the department took its first step by hiring a civilian to perform duties formerly done by the Public Information/Crime Prevention officer. More changes are under consideration. Scott Kaiser, a representative of the Fraternal Order of Police (FOP) cautioned, however, that the FOP is against the elimination of officer positions and that further civilianization should be done cautiously.

Technology Budget

There is a slight increase in the proposed budget for computer expenses, from $99,600 in FY 2014 to $100,300 proposed for FY 2015. This includes the annual software maintenance expense ($94,000) for the new computer-aided dispatch and records management system.

Craze and Corporal Tim White, an IT-savvy police officer, were enthusiastic about some of the technology currently in use that helps officers do their job, including license plate readers which can scan the citation history of vehicles, a new electronic crash-reporting system and electronic fingerprints. Indeed, use of the license plate reader led to the discovery of a victim recently murdered in Greenbelt.

One issue that created substantial discussion was the department’s request in future budgets that the council consider an initial investment of $60,920 for 32 body video cameras with a yearly future cost of $9,456 per annum. Such cameras attach to the officer’s person and automatically record events during traffic stops when officers interview motorists. Although in-car videos are utilized by other police departments on a regular basis, they have never been utilized in Greenbelt. Mayor Emmett Jordan said that although body video cameras may help the police, privacy concerns need to be addressed. FOP representative Kaiser agreed that the cameras could capture improper conduct but stated that monies would be better spent on basic equipment not available to all police officers, such as laptops, printers and tasers.

Finally, Craze stated that the council should consider authorizing hiring a full-time in-house IT professional for the police. Councilmember Leta Mach asked if this person would be shared with other city agencies. Craze replied that he needed a dedicated IT person to serve his department exclusively.

Equipment Budget

Captain Tom Kemp, serving as spokesperson on this issue, stated that the department would like to receive an appropriation of $20,000 to better train and equip officers to respond to active shooter situations of the type seen at Columbine and other schools. The money would be used for training and to purchase 55 vests containing Level 5 ballistic plates, which would not allow deadly penetration by assault weapons. The vests currently in use cannot stop penetration by high-power rifles. It was noted that this item is not in the FY 2015 budget but the council suggested that funds might be accessible from drug forfeiture funds. City Manager Michael McLaughlin stated that he would examine this possibility.

The FY 2015 proposed budget also contains funds to purchase six police replacement vehicles at a total cost of $171,600 (two Ford Explorers and four Ford Tauruses). The police department also has recommended the purchase of 10 replacement tasers which Craze says is the best tool to de-escalate confrontations.

Income Generated

Although most of the monies utilized by the police department come from general city revenues, substantial amounts are self-generated. In FY 2014, for example, the department was awarded an estimated $631,000 in grants from the State Police, the State Highway Administration and other sources. It also collected an estimated $123,000 in parking citations and late fees; $275,000 in red-light camera fines and $240,000 in speed-camera fines.

CERT Funding

Toward the end of the work-session, Kris White, CERT representative, addressed the council in support of its request for $1,650 in funding. It noted that 2013 was a productive year for CERT in its role in educating residents about how to be prepared in an emergency and in helping to develop emergency preparedness plans for families and pets. Among other things, CERT took part in the “Are You Ready” event in Roosevelt Center and staffed a booth during the Labor Day Festival. CERT also will coordinate with the Public Safety Advisory Committee to handle a city referral regarding an emergency preparation plan for city residents.

Other

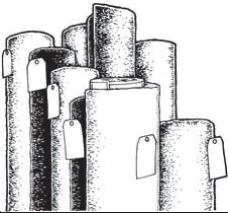

The proposed budget presented to council included an increase in the Animal Control budget from $202,600 in FY 2014 to $213,000 in FY 2015. The budget for the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad remains at $98,000. Of that amount $88,000 is budgeted for the purchase of equipment and $10,000 to be allocated ($5,000 each) to the Berwyn Heights and West Lanham Hills Fire Departments.

Park Trust, the event is a public education program that empowers children and encourages families to take advantage of the outdoors and visit local, regional, state and national parks.

Budget Hearing

After the presentations, Jordan recessed council’s regular meeting in order to conduct a required public hearing on the proposed FY 2015 city budget.

First of several to speak was George Boyce, representing Club125 located in Roosevelt Center. He noted the unmet needs of the city’s contribution groups and the Advisory Committee on Education. Boyce was concerned that Greenbelt Access Television, Inc. (GATE), meanwhile, has enjoyed increased contributions from the city. He suggested council should cut those back, using the savings to fund other groups.

Later in the meeting under “Petitions and Requests,” Boyce also urged council to create a Science and Technology Advisory Committee and allocate funds from GATE to support scientific programs in the city.

Pat Novinski addressed the budget hearing to urge council’s support for increasing the Alight Dance Theater’s contribution in the budget.

Molly Lester also noted the level of city contributions to GATE. She, too, urged council to reduce GATE contributions, using the funds saved to address needs of contribution groups and other city needs.

Robert Zugby, president of GATE, responded, noting that funds received through the city are part of fees provided to the city by cable TV providers for their support of public access channels required by law when they enter into franchise agreements with city and county governments. Zugby also noted that GATE, a creation of the city government, continues an active partnership with the city.

Wish List

An April 24 memo from City Manager Michael McLaughlin listed items that have thus far been considered during the council series of budget worksessions for possible addition to the FY 2015 budget, the so-called “wish list.” Included on the list are an additional information technology staff person, $60,000; an additional assistant city manager position, $90,000 or a management analyst position, $60,000; director of external relations, $100,000; a half-time juvenile delinquency counselor, $30,000; an increase in the amount for Advisory Committee on Education grants, $2,000; an increased contribution to the county animal shelter of $3,000 to $5,000; repair or replacement of the compressed natural gas fueling facility, $25,000 to $50,000; an additional allocation to contribution groups as per their requests, $300; and contributions to Alight Dance Theater, $1,000; CHEARS, $1,000 and Club125 (Green Stems), $5,000.

Council has scheduled several more budget worksessions with its final budget review worksession on Monday, May 19.

A second public hearing on the proposed budget will be included on the agenda of the Tuesday, May 27 council meeting. Budget adoption will take place at the council’s first meeting in June.

Consent Agenda

Most other business on council’s agenda was taken care of with the consent agenda where a single motion approves items such as minutes of prior meetings, committee reports and other communications unless a councilmember requests otherwise.

One such item was a letter to County Council Member Ingrid Turner expressing appreciation for her successful efforts to secure passage of County Council legislation authorizing the rental of commercial kitchens in facilities such as the Greenbelt Community Center. This relief has been a long-time request by the city, which now will be able to rent out the kitchen to qualified food preparation firms.

The Butterflies Are Coming to Greenbelt

To help stem the decline of millions of monarch butterflies and other pollinators which has been partially attributed to loss of habitat and food sources, friends of the Greenbelt Forest Preserve are launching a Butterfly Brigade of people interested in planting and helping others to plant butterfly gardens.

One very important plant to include in these gardens is milkweed, which is the monarch butterfly's only food source. Information on planting milkweed seeds, butterfly and bee-friendly gardens, and educational children's activities celebrating the importance and beauty of the pollinators will all be available at the Greenbelt Forest Preserve tent during the Green Man Festival May 10-11, which is also celebrating pollinators.

Anyone who is interested in butterfly gardens and/or becoming part of the Butterfly Brigade is encouraged to visit the booth or contact friends of the forest at greenbeltforestpreserve@gmail.com. Keep It Wild, Wooded and Winged!

The following GHI members have formally indicated their agreement to serve, if elected; and supplied the following biographical sketches to the GHI Nominations and Elections Committee by the Committee's deadline of May 5, 2014 at 5:00 p.m., for subsequent publication.

Frank is a board member of GreenBeLT Pride, and he has helped with the City's Labor Day Festival and 75th Anniversary Committees. Outside of Greenbelt, he is a Prince George's County representative for WMATA's Riders' Advisory Council, for which he served two-terms as Chair.

Frank is the Executive Director of New Ways Ministry, a national Catholic ministry of justice and reconciliation for lesbian/gay/bisexual/transgender Catholics and the wider church. He conducts educational programs around the nation, as well as editing a daily blog.

He has a graduate degree in Rhetoric from the University of Maryland, where he was also an instructor and writing program administrator.

Last year Diana served on the Special Committee on Smoke-free Buildings and helped to craft the Smoke-free Rows provision that has been utilized by growing numbers of GHI members. Diana also worked with a Task Force on GHI's Shed Rules to develop changes that eliminated style restrictions in order to emphasize maintenance, quality materials and good construction for sheds.

Diana enjoys biking, kayaking, hiking, reading and traveling, and is a professional musician. She commutes by Metro to her job as Collateral Control at National Cooperative Bank in Arlington, Virginia.
